

PARLIAMENTARY ELECTIONS.

TO THE ELECTIONS OF THE GWYDIR DISTRICT.

GENTLEMEN.—Remembering that I was personally unable to canvass the electorate during my last candidature, and the many local difficulties in the district, I cannot but feel that having got second place in the election, I am bound to do my best to secure the support of the electors in the future. I am, therefore, glad to have the opportunity of expressing my appreciation of the support which has been given to me, and of assuring you that I am, and shall continue to be, your faithful servant.

In conclusion I hope that any little disagreement and animosity which may have arisen over the election may be forgotten and forgiven, and the same good feelings as have hitherto existed may continue to prevail amongst all.

I am, Gentlemen, yours most truly,
ADOLPH GOLDMAN.

Narrabri, April 5, 1872.

THE ELECTIONS OF THE GWYDIR DISTRICT.

GENTLEMEN.—The returns from the different polling places having been published, at last I find I am amongst the defeated candidates, and that the district is satisfied with its old member. Such being the case I hope that he who has been a drone may be able to earn his bread and butter, and become a worker, not resting satisfied with the questionable honor of being an M.L.A., but earning true honor by faithfully performing the solemn duty he has undertaken. I only regret that I am no longer able to do so, and sincerely, all those friends who recorded their vote in my favor.

I am, Gentlemen, yours faithfully,
JOHN D. MACANISH.

THE PITT-STREET NEW SUNDAY-SCHOOL.—The opening of the new schoolroom in connection with the Pitt-street Congregational church, was a most interesting in the large room of the new building, by a tea and public meeting. The decorations were exceedingly effective. Festoons and garlands hung gracefully from the walls, which were further enriched by numerous tastefully arranged vases of fern fronds and flowers. On the eastern wall, a trophy of ferns was shown, the centre of which the Australian Arms was prominently displayed. In front of the gallery at the western end, was placed the "Royal Arms," also surrounded by festoons and garlands. A great variety of flags, bunting, and streamers, were prominently displayed, and mottoes of every available point. The fest ensemble of the hall, was most effective, and the decorations were everywhere in evidence, besides numerous other objects of interest. The evening service was most impressive, and was very brilliant. The choir, which was carried out by Mr. A. Torsing. The conspicuous aid of the ladies was manifest, and the foundation of the new school was completed by the opening of the Pitt-street Sunday-school, on the 1st of January.

The movement set on foot for the erection of the new school building was successful, and the following committee was elected. The tender of Messrs. Gawnthorpe and Chapman was accepted for the sum of £2807—this was inclusive of gas-fittings, school furniture, and other necessaries, including the cost of the site. The committee expressed thanks to the friends who so generously aided them by their countenance and contributions, and especially to the ladies of the church, who aided them on the ground of common Christianity. Mr. Charles H. Mylre, treasurer, then made a statement, which showed that the sum promised (nearly the whole of which had been received) was £2807, and that the sum required to be met. Mr. J. G. Cartley, superintendent of the day-school, read a report, which showed that the number of children attending the Sunday schools connected with the church was 100, and that the day-school had 657 children on the roll; Sussex-street school, 100.

CONFECTIENERS' PICNIC.—On Tuesday last, the employees of Messrs. Biddell, Brothers, of the corner of George-street, held a picnic at Bayswater. The steamer one of provisions. A mist which overspread the city and harbour disappeared as the sun gained strength, and a most brilliant and delightful day ensued. The company, which numbered about 150, landed without accident, and found enjoyment in dancing, quilts, fishing, &c. Many of them climbed to the top of the rocks, where a splendid view of the harbour is to be obtained, and of the fortifications in people who lived in the back streets of the municipality itself. It was manifestly unjust that these people should be asked for that from which they received no benefit, and if he had been the mayor of the municipality, he would have had a retrospective effect, he would have been in Court to insist that the rate was illegal and could not be enforced. The amount of this gas rate which had been paid was £148,144.56, and the balance unpaid was £137. The rate would not be a rate, and he was not, doubtless, concerned there to stamp it as such, but he would come to build in Fordingham when there was a rate of 10d. in the £. In Sydney you had only to pay 1s. in the £ for city improvements, which included gas. He doubted the citizens had to pay a sewerage-rate if they rate for gas, still less was there a rate for gas which a majority of the people could not use. He asked them whether they got oil, in the S. laid out upon their streets? He said that the Municipal Council had a rate of £100 a year with a revenue of £1100 a year, was a house worth it to it £600 a year to pay the clerk and the overseer (man who were responsible for more working expenses. He thought they could not do better than try and get the municipality annexed to Sydney. (Cheers.) Mr. M'Coy stated the reason which had been taken by about two-thirds of the members of the Municipal Council was that the Select Committees of the Legislative Assembly, in order to gain the petition presented for the purpose. By annexation to Sydney we should get the toll-bar abolished equal to £5 a year to a man who kept a horse and cart. they would get their penny postage, instead of twopenny

PADDINGTON MUNICIPALITY.—A meeting of the ratepayers of this municipality was held last night in the Council Chamber, at Paddington, respecting the extra rate about to be imposed by the Council, and to take into consideration the petition presented to the Council at Paddington to Sydney. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. H. H. J. P. There were about fifty gentlemen present. Mr. J. H. H. J. P. Hawkins moved the first resolution, "That the majority of the ratepayers of this Municipality greatly object to the extra gas rate of 4d. in the £ cent to be imposed by the Paddington Council."

ing, closed with my last visit of suburban property. We would have water laid on; and that would aid the rental of house property, and would be a great value to the owner. When this matter was agitated before the Paddington Municipality was mapped out as Paddington ward, and was to be represented by three aldermen, and asked whether three representatives in the Sydney Municipal Council would be sufficient to represent the Sydney Council were willing to receive us, and would guarantee all our liabilities, and the probability was that the recent Council Chamber would be used as a sort of Court Petty Sessions, and thus obviate the necessity of the expense of going to the State Police Court to present. Truly, Mr. John Roberts, Mr. McCulloch, and the

at the Sydney Council would accept any part of the water supply liability imposed on it by the Government. Mr. Hargreaves, in reply, said that Mr. Hargreaves, J.P., said that in a few years the Council would on the Government endowment. Gas was reckoned a benefit in all civilized communities; and, indeed, the only one. It was not a luxury, but a necessity. If the Council so many had paid the tax, he thought the remainder would have to do so too, although he had been of opinion that at the manner of levying the rate was illegal. His object in raising the question was to draw attention to taxation to Sydney, and there were many advantages in doing that. We should be likely to get the water supply, on the toll-bar would be removed, and there would be no endowment. If the Council were to take the endowment ceased, the present rates would be abolished, and that was a reason why we should not procrastinate as speedily as possible in settling the matter. Not one of the four addresses referred until the attention to the fact that they were indebted. Some had not paid even yet. His proposed annexation formerly, but was now in favour of it. The resolution was then put and unanimously agreed to. The next morning the Mayor of Sydney, Mr. John Dingle seconded the resolution, and Mr. Whytlock supported the motion. Mr. Whytlock did not think the resolution sufficiently explicit. Mr. Hawkins said that he would move that the Mayor of Sydney, this week, should send that the Sydney Council would be only too happy to receive Puddington in their boundaries. Mr. Galvin spoke in support of the motion. The resolution was agreed to. There being only one dissentient. It was arranged that the public should be allowed to see the maps, and to give effect to the views of the rate-payers on the question of annexation.
